Question 3

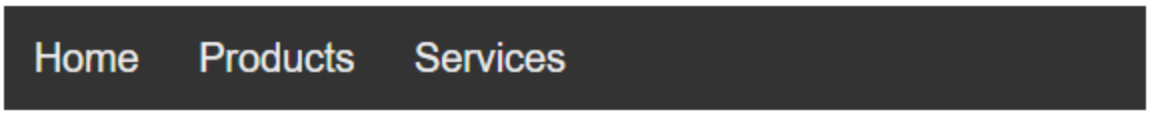
1 / 1 pts

A fellow student is frustrated because their navigation menu does not distribute the links evenly in the navigation bar as intended.

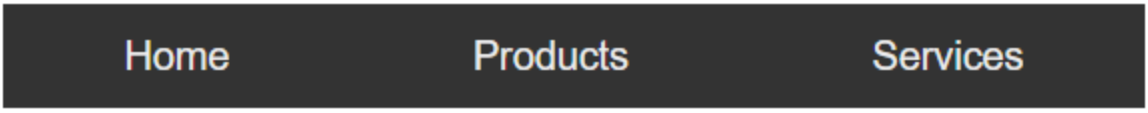
The first image is what they are getting and the second image is what they want it to look like.

What feedback should you provide to help them?

Current:



Intended:



The student posted the relevant HTML and associated CSS for review.

```
<nav class="navigation">
  Home
  Products
  Services
</nav>
```

```
.navigation {
  display: flex;
  align-items: center;
  flex: 1 1 auto;
 }
```

```
.navigation a {
    display: block;
    color: #eee;
    padding: 0.75rem;
    text-decoration: none;
    text-align: center;
}
```

- (selected) The 'flex' property must be applied to the immediate children `a` of the flex container (.navigation).
